

The New Federal Employees Benefits System (FEBS) Available June 19, 2007

On Tuesday June 19, the NASA Employee Benefits Statement (NEBS) and Employee Emergency Contact System (EECS) will be incorporated into the Employee Express website. The new "Federal Employee Benefits Statement" (FEBS) and "Emergency Contact Information" (ECI) systems will support NASA as well as an expanding number of other government agencies. Inclusion of NEBS/EECS in Employee Express will allow you to access your benefits information from home, in the office or while on travel.

The FEBS Statement is a comprehensive, confidential summary that is unique to you. It is intended to give you a concise, personal list of those benefits that vary according to your years of service, salary, and personal elections — such as life and health insurance and Thrift Savings Plan (TSP) participation.

The ECI system will allow NASA to maintain its ability to respond to mishaps or other emergency situations. This includes prompt notification of next-of-kin or other emergency contacts for individuals who may become seriously sick or injured.

You may access Employee Express at <https://www.employeeexpress.gov/>. After sign in, you will be directed to the Main menu. The link to FEBS will be located under the "Related Sites" section and the link to ECI will be located under the "Miscellaneous" section.

Any questions concerning this notice, contact:
NSSC Customer Contact Center
1-877-NSSC123 or nssc-contactcenter@nasa.gov